1.	Since October CMS is based on Laravel framework, will you count any other Laravel based CMS as equivalent for OctoberCMS, since October CMS is very rare CMS?	According to Section 7.5 (1.2.) Clause 3 of Regulation it is expected that the „Web developer” proposed by the Tenderer will have sound knowledge exactly in Wordpress and OctoberCMS platform. Regarding the experience of key experts „Web designer” and „Account manager”, Procurement commission indicates, that experience in working in any other platform equivalent to the October CMS (based on Laravele framework) can be proposed. If the Tenderer proposes „Account manager” and „Web designer” with an experience in the equivalent platform to the platform stipulated in Section 7.5. (1.2., 1.3., 1.4.) of open competition Regulations (October CMS (based on Laravele framework)), the Tenderer must explain and provide evidences on what bases it shall be considered as equivalent.
2.	How do entities on whose capabilities the tenderer relies differ from subcontractors?	With a definition of “Subcontractors” Procurement commission understands: A natural or legal person or combination of such person regardless of the legal nature of their mutual relationship involved/hired by the Tenderer or itself, performing the part of the works or services of the procurement contract. With a definition of “Entities on whose capabilities the tenderer relies” Procurement commission understands: “A natural or legal person or combination of such person regardless of the legal nature of their mutual relationship, the
